Making the Grade in Memphis

Patrick J. McCloskey

Abstract
Catholic schools achieved the greatest social transformation in American history, pulling impoverished Irish immigrants out of the underclass and into the working and middle classes, writes Patrick McCloskey, author of The Street Stops Here—an account of a year in the life of a Catholic school in Harlem. These schools now provide a lifeline for disadvantaged, non-Catholic minorities in urban America, boosting graduation and college acceptance rates, and outperforming many equivalent public schools. But they are also disappearing from the very neighborhoods that need them most. McCloskey reports on how one diocese has bucked the trend, what it means to one family, and what it could mean for America.

DOI
10.15365/joce.1304062013

First Page
532

Last Page
553

Creative Commons License

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 3.0 License.

Recommended Citation
http://dx.doi.org/10.15365/joce.1304062013

Making the grade in Memphis. What we know so far about an alleged grading scandal in Memphis, and why it’s not as unusual as you might think. By Laura Faith Kebede - June 6, 2017. PHOTO: Ruma Kumar. The independent audit of Memphis high schools launched earlier this year after Trezevant Principal Ronnie Mackin reported inaccuracies and inconsistencies in transcripts and report cards. Those irregularities were highlighted again last week when Mackin submitted a resignation letter charging a district cover-up of an alleged grading scandal—an accusation that Superintendent Dorsey Hopson has denied. Rise & Shine Tennessee. Start your morning with the latest Tennessee education news in your inbox. Subscribe.

Chalkbeat grounds me in the work going on here. Making the Grade is a 1984 American film. It was directed by Dorian Walker and written by Charles Gale and Gene Quintano. It was filmed at Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee. Synopsis. Palmer Woodrow (Dana Olsen) is a rich prep school kid who rarely attends class and has been expelled from numerous prep schools. Reference Links For This Wiki. All information for Making the Grade (film)'s wiki comes from the below links. Any source is valid, including Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, and LinkedIn. Pictures, videos, biodata, and files relating to Making the Grade (film) are also acceptable encyclopedic sources.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Making_the_Grade_%28film%29. The original version of this page is from Wikipedia, you can edit the page right here on Everipedia. Making the Grade is a 1984 American film. It was directed by Dorian Walker and written by Charles Gale and Gene Quintano. It was filmed at Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee.

Contents
1 Synopsis
At the start of the film's final credits, the characters Palmer and Eddie are touted as returning in the upcoming movie, Tourista. However, after low theatrical interest in the duo and repeated missed deadlines (of which Olsen tried to contribute as a writer), the script for Tourista was never completed. The pair never teamed up in filmmaking again.

Making the grade in Memphis. What we know so far about an alleged grading scandal in Memphis, and why it’s not as unusual as you might think. By Laura Faith Kebede - June 6, 2017. PHOTO: Ruma Kumar. The independent audit of Memphis high schools launched earlier this year after Trezevant Principal Ronnie Mackin reported inaccuracies and inconsistencies in transcripts and report cards. Those irregularities were highlighted again last week when Mackin submitted a resignation letter charging a district cover-up of an alleged grading scandal—an accusation that Superintendent Dorsey Hopson has denied. Rise & Shine Tennessee. Start your morning with the latest Tennessee education news in your inbox. Subscribe.

Chalkbeat grounds me in the work going on here. Making the Grade is a 1984 American film. It was directed by Dorian Walker and written by Charles Gale and Gene Quintano. It was filmed at Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee. Synopsis. Palmer Woodrow (Dana Olsen) is a rich prep school kid who rarely attends class and has been expelled from numerous prep schools. Reference Links For This Wiki. All information for Making the Grade (film)'s wiki comes from the below links. Any source is valid, including Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, and LinkedIn. Pictures, videos, biodata, and files relating to Making the Grade (film) are also acceptable encyclopedic sources.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Making_the_Grade_%28film%29. The original version of this page is from Wikipedia, you can edit the page right here on Everipedia. Making the Grade is a 1984 American film. It was directed by Dorian Walker and written by Charles Gale and Gene Quintano. It was filmed at Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee. Contents. 1 Synopsis.  At the start of the film’s final credits, the characters Palmer and Eddie are touted as returning in the upcoming movie, Tourista. However, after low theatrical interest in the duo and repeated missed deadlines (of which Olsen tried to contribute as a writer), the script for Tourista was never completed. The pair never teamed up in filmmaking again.

Making the grade in Memphis. What we know so far about an alleged grading scandal in Memphis, and why it’s not as unusual as you might think. By Laura Faith Kebede - June 6, 2017. PHOTO: Ruma Kumar. The independent audit of Memphis high schools launched earlier this year after Trezevant Principal Ronnie Mackin reported inaccuracies and inconsistencies in transcripts and report cards. Those irregularities were highlighted again last week when Mackin submitted a resignation letter charging a district cover-up of an alleged grading scandal—an accusation that Superintendent Dorsey Hopson has denied. Rise & Shine Tennessee. Start your morning with the latest Tennessee education news in your inbox. Subscribe.

Chalkbeat grounds me in the work going on here. Making the Grade is a 1984 American film. It was directed by Dorian Walker and written by Charles Gale and Gene Quintano. It was filmed at Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee. Synopsis. Palmer Woodrow (Dana Olsen) is a rich prep school kid who rarely attends class and has been expelled from numerous prep schools. Reference Links For This Wiki. All information for Making the Grade (film)'s wiki comes from the below links. Any source is valid, including Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, and LinkedIn. Pictures, videos, biodata, and files relating to Making the Grade (film) are also acceptable encyclopedic sources.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Making_the_Grade_%28film%29. The original version of this page is from Wikipedia, you can edit the page right here on Everipedia. Making the Grade is a 1984 American film.